Do you need support?

Has your child received a life-changing diagnosis?

Harry's Pals

Providing emotional support to parents of severely ill and disabled children

We are here for you

Harry's Pals provides emotional support through free therapy or counselling to parents who have received a diagnosis that their child under the age of 18 is severely ill or disabled.

When my son Harry was born with severe brain damage, I was shocked to discover that there was no emotional support for parents receiving such heart-breaking and life-changing news.

That lack of support had a huge impact on our ability to cope. This experience inspired me to create Harry's Pals.

Hayley Charlesworth, Founder

At Harry's Pals..

..we believe every family facing such heartbreak deserves someone to talk to.

Our carefully selected, fully qualified counsellors and therapists are here to support you whenever you need it.

"This is the most support we have felt since the diagnosis. When you feel like the whole world is against you, Harry's Pals is there to remind you that's not the case."

Jody - Parent Carer

We are passionate about ensuring that parents of children with life-limiting or life-threatening conditions are offered the mental health support they need, helping them to feel stronger and better equipped for the road ahead.

It is quick and easy to apply for support, just fill in our online form and we will be in touch.

www.harryspals.co.uk

Registered Charity no. 1198592

kindly printed by irwinmitchell